

CHRISTO

	Images
Leader: Do you listen at his feet to the melody of his voice, explaining the mysteries of life and death? People: Then call him Master and follow him!	Music
Leader: Do you behold him serene and bright as, in spite of the horrible abyss ever before you, you climb along the dark steep path? People: Then call him Guide and, fearlessly, follow him!	Canyons
Leader: Were you the slave of all your passions, miserably chained to vices, and he broke the yoke and unloosed your chains? People: Then call him Liberator and follow him!	Slavery
Leader: Does he, perhaps, wipe away your hot tears, and, when suffering would break your heart, is his breast a comforting shelter for you? People: Then call him Heavenly Friend and follow him!	Comfort
Leader: Did you, a repentant person, lay the burden of your sins at the foot of his cross, and he forgives you of them all? People: Then call him Savior, and, lovingly, follow him!	Calvary
Leader: Do you desire to do his will day by day, and free of doubts, reservations, and selfishness, have you offered all to him as your sacrifice? People: Then call him Lord and Master and follow him!	Sacrificial Altar
Leader: Were you, in anguished thought, asking, "What is a person; what is a person's origin; and what is a person's destiny?" and he with his life came and tore away the veil of the mystery? People: Then call him Son of Man and follow him always!	Questioner about Ourselves
Leader: Or was your confusion the hidden power which fills the universe with its glory? And in vain you asked the wise man, the mystic, "Who is God?" until at last you found in Christ the answer? People: Then call him Son of God and ever follow him!	Questioner about God
Leader: It may be that, later on, as you think about him, you find no words to define him. Then be silent! In adoration the echo of one's voice seems sacrilege. The worship which the stars offer him, though silent, is none the less bright, and a saint has said, "He dwells in the silence in highest heaven." Are you aware of him who walks by your side, ever with you and ever near, and do you love him and feel him near! Let questioning lips be silent, and in quiet devotion and surrender let others see a name for him. And you? People: Do not give him away. Follow him!	Silent Celebration
